Connecticut's Yankee in "King' Roosevelt's Court, Attorney General Homer C. Cummings, is today the real power behind the country's present smooth-running machine that has made G-Men a terror to ovil docra-

This is the opinion expressed by George Creel, veteran observer of the Washington political scene, who, writing for Collier's, penctrates for the first time since his appointment the "invincible placidity" of the "tall, stoop-shouldered, slow-moving, slow-spoken" Connecticut cabinet member.

Attorney General Cummings, according to Creek, while vexing the Democratic high command by failing to capitalize on the present overwhelming popularity of the G-Men for his own and the Adminintration's glory, is surprising his critics by his quiet accomplishments and reforms.

Helieving their jobs called for ninese, training and experience, Mr Cummings kept both J. Edgar Hoover, in charge of the bureau of investigation, and Banford Bates, director of the bureau if prisons, although most Democrate elamored for a "clean out" of that "bonch of Republican hold-overs." # Beware! Open Season for Colds Is Coming

$1,500,000,000 Every Year

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY. OR the love of Mike, button up that overcoat! And stay out of draughts! And don't get your feet wet! The hey-dey period for the common cold is just around the corner. For if there can be said to be one time of the year when more people catch cold than any other, statistics and health surveys indicate that that period embraces the latter half of January and the first half of February.

Now is the time to think of protecting yourself against the everpresent threat of the most common affliction of mankind—the common cold, which, for its very commonness, is also perhaps mankind's most neglected affliction.

How many, many of us, asked if we were not feeling a little upset, have tossed off the question with a sniffle and reply to the effect that "Oh, it's only a little cold. It'll pass away soon !"

That is perhaps excusable on the grounds that an ordinary cold is not productive of terrible suffering, so long as it develops no complications. What we are probably most unwise in overlooking is the frequency with which such complications occur. Here is an illustration:

How Dangerous Colds Are. We read with horror of thousands who die in flood, tornadoes, fires, gun accidents, falls, asphyxiation and the dozens of other catastrophes which are classed as accidental, Today the entire nation is up in arms, so to speak, in a campaign to cut down the alarming annual toll of fatal motor vehicle deaths. Yet there are in America more deaths every year from pneumonia than from all accidental causes combined. Pneumonia almost in-

Colds cost the people of the United States more than one and onehalf billion dollars a year, according to the United States public health service. They are responsible for an average loss of two and onehalf days every year for every worker in the country. In surveys conducted in certain industries it has been shown that over a period of ten years 30 per cent of all ob- ment of cause.

sences from work was due to colds, They Cost America among men. Among women, 31 per cent of all absences from work was due to colds. The public health service also reveals that most Americans have two to three colds a year, and that, among workers, the average is from three to seven colds a year.

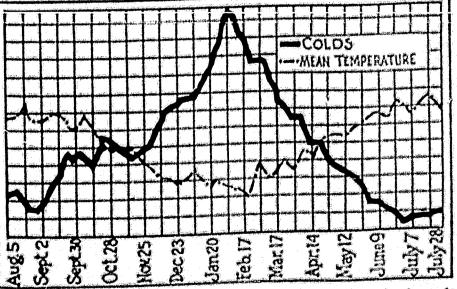

Class groups differ in their susceptibility to colds. College students, for instance, because they are as a rule young, carefree and somewhat indifferent to slight indispositions, contract colds more often than the average person. The cold rate for army officers and their familles, accustomed to more careful living habits, falls far below the average.

Cost of Colds is Enormous. American industry annually loses about 90,000,000 days, at a cost of nearly half a billion dollars, because of colds. And the really startling thing is that the prevalence of colds does not differ very much batween different sections of the country. People in the warmer climates suffer from colds just as do people In the colder areas. As a matter of fact, the Eskimos in the Arctic regions never suffer colds, except for short periods after the visits of ships from other parts of the world, indicating that the germs (if, indeed, that is what they are-no one really knows) are brought into these frigid parts from lands where milder weather prevails. On Admiral Byrd's first expedition to the Antarctic not one of his men caught a cold.

Many colds can be prevented with a little forethought, and so, of course, can their complications. Mighty serious these complications are, too, for pneumonia is only one of them. Gthers are quinsy, bronchitis, pleurisy and often tuberculosis, if the cold is neglected long enough. Perhaps one reason that we do not give colds the attention they deserve is that nobody actually knows what causes them. A regrettable fact, but none the less true. There are several theories that have been given prominence, but medical scientists admit that there is no one who can point at a germ, a "bug," an organism or a micro organism and say definitely, "That is what causes

This is apparent even from the definition of a cold, as given by Dr. Alphonse Raymond Dochez, one of America's foremost authorities. He anys: "The common cold is an acute catarrhal inflammation of the upper respiratory tract, of undertermined ettology." Ettology is the assign-

This chart, the result of a survey among the employees of a large in surance company, shows how colds increase as the temperature drops.

Be careful about this! George Olsen, genial bandmaste lege Inn In Chicago's Hotel Sherman, and Ethel Shutta, his beautiful songstress-wife, demonstrate a practice which probably spreads as many colds as any other this time of year, according to medical authorities. Keep Up Your Resistance. Since people who are "run down" are most susceptible to colds, the smart thing is to keep yourself from getting that way. Keep your body as healthy as you can.

Medical authorities agree that if you are to keep from catching colds, you should get as much sleep, sunshine and fresh air as possible. You should ent plenty of nourishing food without overeating, for overeating lowers resistance.

Dress so that you will keep comfortably warm, without having too much clothing on in hot weather, or too little in cold. If you get wet, change clothes as soon as you can.' Avoid, if possible, going from a hot room to the cold out-of-doors. Never stay in a draft.

You should remember to get some sort of exercise without overdoing it, to breathe through your nose, not your mouth, to keep clean at all times, for dirty hands often carry infection, and to avoid consti-

Don't Mix With Sufferers.

Above all, keep away from people who have colds, for the common cold is one of the most contagious of all diseases. When there is an epidemic in your vicinity, you should keep away from all crowds, avoid strictly the use of common drinking cups, telephones and the like. This goes even for members of your family and dear friends. By the same token, you should, if you have a cold, keep away from everybody; colds are most often spread by kissing and breathing into another's face. Cover up when you speeze or cough.

If you feel a cold coming on, go to bed. Drink plenty of water. Eat lightly, and take a mild laxative. If you feel sick, don't try to work. You may pass your cold to others, and your employer certainly would not thank you for that.

It won't burt to repeat: Sec your doctor. It is better not to nttempt to prescribe for yourself. That's your doctor's business. Let him do it. If you find you have a great many colds, ask him to make a thorough examination and tell you why.

Finally, don't simply neglect your cold. The risk isn't worth it.

No Cannon Balls Wasted

in Napoleon's War Days To the soldier of the cannon ball era the modern system of battering the enemy with high explosive shell would seem wasteful, observes a

A party of froops was sent down to the beach to bulld glorified sand castles. The British admiral, Sir Sydney Smith, thinking that a new battery was being built, closed in with his ships and poured broadalde after broadside of cannon balls onto the beach. Napoleon paid five france for each one retrieved and deposited at his ordnance dump,

On other days, false movements of troops were made along the beach when the British fleet was near enough to watch them, and the "fielding" gave splendld results. Mr. Ramill paused. He listened to what Huxby was muttering in his ear. His frown smoothed out, and he again favored Garth with the smile that did not go up as high as his shrewd eyes.

"Oh, well, my boy, if you're bound to risk your life in foolhardy adventuring, that's none of our business."

"Quite so," Garth agreed. "If our sixty-forty deal had not fallen through, it would have been your business to do the legal assess-4 three companions. He could ment work on the claim. But as things stand, I may as well put in the winter doing the work myself. The metal I sled out with my wolf team should pay enough to buy me a fair-sized freight plane."

Without a word of thanks, she dragged the blanket to the edge of the nearest outburnt fire and began brushing the fluffy gray wood ashes upon it with a spruce spray. Her father had been gazing thoughtfully at Garth. He took up his empty foxskin bag.

"Come on, Vivian. This is washday. Take Lilith's bag and get your potash."

The wolfskin knapsack, with its platinum alloy treasure, had been left attached to the mooring line of the cance. There was no bag for Garth. He made one by opening the front of his buckskin shirt and hand-ladling wood ashes inside.

Lillth went over beyond the spruce thicket with her blanketbagged ashes. Garth led Mr. Ramill and Huxby to the strip of sand below the beached canoe. There he showed them how to cheat the buzzing insect pests. Instead of stripping for his laundry work, he muddled his ashes and plastered the paste all over his body and on the inside and outside of his

He rubbed in the mess and gave the weak solution of potash lye time to act. After that came the rinsing. He waded out and sat down in the water up to his neck. Thus protected from the swarms of stingers, he stripped off one garment at a time, washed it clean of ashes, and tossed it upon the edge of the beach. Before coming out, he took a luxurlous swim in the clear river water.

First Ramill and then Huxby rather gingerly copied Garth's method. Like him, both wound up with a swim,

With the landing came the comedy. The others ended their bathing before Garth. He trend water to watch them. Both had wrung out their clothes and flung them well up the beach. The moment they splattered ashore, the walting swarms of blood-suckers buzzed to the feast.

He bent at the zizzing pests with his tattered union suit. It enabled him to get into the leather trousers and cont without being stung more than half a hundred times.

Garth's mirth was mixed with admiration for the mine investor's nerve. Along with this he felt a rlow of satisfaction over the results of what his rigorous training had done for the once-soft million.

"My word, sir," Garth sang out, "you look fit for the football squad. That should be worth more to you than a dozen platinum claims. At least, you might toss me my buck-

Mellowed by the bath and swim to a temporary return of friendliness, the millionaire chuckled and came down the beach to fling the sodden garments out to their owner. Ills loltering afterwards may have been for Huxby. Yet he went back to the dead fires with Garth, when the engineer muttered something about having dropped his penkulfe.

As the two disappeared over the top of the ice-gonged bank, Huxby sprang to open the wolfskin knap. sack. From it he anatched out a B Ramill? They're as good as glow in her blue eyes. He spoke piece of raneld bear-cub fat, a clip of platol cartridges, and his "lost"

Still quick yet unhurried, he loaded the clip into the hollow butt and slid back the outer barrel to throw a cartridge into the breech,

As was of course to be expected Lilith Ramill had not returned from her own dip and wood-ashes laundering.

Still in a friendly mood, but with shrewd calculation in his eyes. Mr. Ramill stretched out on his back in the long grass beside Garth.

"Well, young man, it appears that the game is played out. The joke on us is that you had the cards stacked. A cold deck, and no stakes up."

With swift, purposeful move- started to turn over on his side to paces distant, he glimpsed the top of Huxby's hat and the outthrust muzzle of the automatic.

> As Carth ducked forward, the pistol blared. Garth pitched down on his face. At the same instant, startled by the shot, Mr. Ramill jerked up on his elbow. The long grass had hidden him. Huxby could not have known that his partner was lying so close beside Garth.

In the excitement of the moment, he must have thought he had missed his kill and that Garth was bounding up again. He instantly pulled the trigger a second time. Knocked over by the shock of the bullet, the millionaire sprawled across the flaceld body of Garth.

Even as the roar of the second shot dinned in his ears, the killer saw what he had done. The pistol dropped from his paralyzed hand.

Before he could recover his wits, Lillth burst screaming from the spruce thicket. Half clad, wet hair flying, she dashed ferward to fling herself down on her bare knees beside her father. Under the partly washed off coat of mosquito dope, his face was the same sallow gray as Carth's.

She looked up, her eyes black with horror. Huxby had risen to his feet. He was advancing, once more cool. She flung out a forbidding hand.

"Stop! Keep away! You-murderer !"

His lips tightened. "You're mad, darling-clear off your head. I shot to save your father, not at him. No, listen-you must listen to me! The d-d roughreek attacked your father-with the knife- had him down. At my first shot he dodged, I thought I missed. Your father sprang up just as I fired again. It's the truth."

"Truth!" she cried-"truth! Yon've killed them - both!"

Huxby advanced with wary quickness. But at sight of the two men he had shot, he thrust his conthidden pisted into its sheath. All the back of Garth's sideward turned head was a crimson blotch. What need of wasting powder on a man shot through the head? Mr. Ramil's wound gave him no less satisfaction, though for an exactly opposite reason. The bullet had strack high up on the shoulder blade, between took and arm. Huxby pulled the thickset body from under Lillia and opened the front of the leather cost. The steel-jacketed bullet had delifed clean through and come and below the collarbone.

Indian Elephant in Gay Trappings.

Prepared by National Resgraphic Society, Washington, D. C - WND Service.

THE elephant, gollath of modern animals, is decidedly different in anatomy from all other mammals. He looks more or less allke at both ends; his trunk is shaped much like his tall, both being practically hairless, wrinkled. and of about the same length. A sleeping elepimot, with cars at rest and the very small eyes closed looks like a case of "heads I lose, talls you win." Because of this uniformity, at the terminal points of his anatomy, and the wrinkled condition of his epidermis, the animal seems unfinished.

The wrinkles cover his back and sides and sag down over his straight, column like legs to his knees, which are always baguy. Perhaps the most frequent misconception about elephants is their age. Animals estimated by circuses to be far beyond fifty years old are usually without exact history in youth. A common error is to overestimate the age of an elephant purchased as a fully grown adult. Such an elephant is often anid to be thirty or forty years old when actually it is fully grown when only ten or twelve years old. It then lives 30 or 35 years in captivity.

Graveyard Never Found.

The story of elephant graveyards circulated in the African wilderness, where Ivory hunters still entertain hopes of a find of graveyard lyory some day. The tradition runs that when they feel death coming They were barking now instead of upon them, elephants leave the herd and trek to an elephant graveyard, a remote spot in the wilderness where all the elephants of the district go to die. There the ground is supposed to be thickly strewn with the huge bones of elephants, many having died 100 years age or more. The tusks which form n part of the skeletal remains of the beasts in such a graveyard would be worth many thousands of dollars, as lvory does not decay or lose quality with age. Many enormous in size, the crown being hunters have sought for these graveyards, but none have been rewarded by the discovery of such treasures.

Those two specks were the hounds who had delen him into the Big River. baying.

Presently a brown form joined the black-and-white specks. It was a hunter drawn there by the barking of the dogs. He was too far away to be dangerous, but the mere sight of him filled Lightfoot with terror again. He watched the hunter walk along the bank and disappear in the bushes.

Presently out of the bushes came a boat, and in it was the hunter. He headed straight toward Lightfoot, and then Lightfoot knew that his brief rest was at an end. He must once more swim or be shot by the hunter in the bont. So Lightfoot again struck out for the shore. His rest had given him new strength. but still he was very, very tired, and swimming was hard work.

Slowly, oh, so slowly, he drew nearer to the bank. What new dangers there might be there be did not know. He had never been on that side of the Big River. He knew nothing of the country on that side. This elephant is also a pygmy of sorts and is usually known to the zoo public as a "pygmy elephant." The name "pygmy" will doubtless stick in the public mind and replace the older or first name bestowed on this species, of "round-cared," or cyclotis. He had sung in Europe before he arrived in this country, a few years ago, but making a name for himself here proved a good deal of a problem. He'd reached the stage where he didn't know just what to do next when some one took him to Roxy, who at that time was at the head of the Radio City Music Hall.

Roxy heard him, and was carried away by that enthusiasm that was responsible for the discovery of so many good singers. He promptly promised young Gorin an engagement.

But Gorin hadn't any evening clothes, and he'd have to have them. "Take him to my tallor," said Roxy to an assistant. "Get him everything he needs and charge the clothes to me." So Igor Gorin had clothes, and an opportunity to sing for huge audivoice delighted the Music Hall's pa trons. It delighted other thousands on the air. Everything was perfect.

Then Roxy left the Music Hall and presently Gorin didn't seem to be heard any more.

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well - Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it — in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains ... and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store - simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

The love of the beautiful calls man to fresh exertions and awakens him to a more noble life; and the glory of it is, that as painters imitate, and poets sing, and architects rear up the gorgeous trophies of their skill - as everything becomes beautiful and orderly, and magnificent - the activity of the mind rises to still greater and to better objects.

Moon Receives Light of

Sun on One Side at Time The moon being a sphere, like the earth, it receives the light of the sun only on one side at a time. The dark of the moon is simply its night; the illuminated side, its day. Since the moon revolves about the earth, we see it in varying positions with relation to the sun.

Sometimes, states a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer, when the moon is "behind" the earth, and f hence in such a position that we can see all of its illuminated side, the sun, the earth and the satellite come into a single line. It is then that the earth throws its round shadow on the moon's face, depriving it of part, or even all, of its light. This is an eclipse.

The moon revolves on its axis, and thus presents all sides of itself to the sun. But the pull of the earth is so strong that it can never turn its face away from us. Its revolution on its axis is achieved therefore in the same length of time it takes the moon to travel around the earth - 27,32166 days. ### Liberia's Constitution Copies That of the U. S.

Liberia is a republic, one of the three independent negro nations of the world. It had its origin in the efforts of several American and European colonization societies to establish a homeland for liberated slaves.

The first settlement was planted in 1822, and in 1847 the land grants which had been acquired from native chiefs by the colonization socleties were constituted as the republic of Liberia. The United States was rather tardy in giving recognition to the new nation, observes a writer in the Cleveland Finin Dealer, but it has since several times made the rest of the world understand that it is interested in keeping Liberia independent, or the republic would probably have been swallowed up long since by one of the European powers.

The constitution and government of Liberia are modeled upon those of the United States. There is a congress made up of a senate and | men. a house of representatives, and the executive authority is vested in a president and a cabinet of six. Electors must be of negro blood and owners of land. All of the officers of government are negroes, largely the descendants of American negroes. The official language of the government is English, but only about 50,000 of the population of 1,500,000 or more is considered civilized. The first half dozen presidents of Liberia were all of American birth.

The Word "Maru"

The word Maru originally meant "a circle," Its present meaning as applied to ships is obscure to the Japanese themselves. When used as a prefix the word means "full," "complete," "all," But it is used as a suffix to the names of ships, not a prefix. According to Japanese tradition, the use of Maru in ships' names dates back to the Eighteenth century, when a Japanese nobleman called a pleasure boat "Maru." Some Japanese scholars, among them school teachers of the present day, understand the word to mean "in a state of motion" or "moving," Many Japanese seamen take it to mean "good luck," the word meaning "circle" indicating that the ship will safely sail back to its home port.
